The difference between a virtual person and a real person is like the difference between a lightning bug and lightning (reusing Twain). In coffee shops, real people meet, sharing time and space. They mix dreams and occupations, ages and aspirations, and you can make all kinds of friends.

People say “I heard you’re a lawyer,
could I ask a quick question?”
This leads to needed pro bono assistance, and much camaraderie.
Sometimes paid work results.

Photos show how diverse patrons
do their own thing all together.

I know of no place that offers a better, sober place to mingle.

Kids come with their parents
but have their own world views
as you can see from the drawings.
